Navitas responds to media speculation

Navitas Limited (ASX: NVT) refers to recent media speculation concerning a partnership with a sixth institution in the United States of America that "it expects to reveal as early as this week". Navitas notes that this speculation may have stemmed from comments made at its FY14 full year results briefing and further notes that it announced to ASX yesterday that a webcast of that briefing was available from its website.

Navitas confirms that it is in ongoing negotiations with a number of potential partner universities including some in the United States of America.

At this stage, those negotiations are ongoing and incomplete. In line with continuous disclosure obligations, Navitas will update the market on the discussions when negotiations are concluded and a legally binding agreement is executed.
