

Clarification Announcement

On 11 September 2023, DY6 Metals Ltd (ASX:DY6) (“DY6” or “the Company”) released an announcement that contained visual observations entitled “Maiden drilling at Machinga identifies potential for widespread REE mineralisation” (“Announcement”).

The Company wishes to provide clarification that visual observations contained in the Announcement should not be considered a proxy or substitute for laboratory analysis which is required to determine the widths and grade of any mineralisation identified in primary geological logging.

The Company also wishes to clarify that the presence of eudialyte does not necessarily equate to rare earth (“REE”) mineralisation until confirmed by chemical analysis. Furthermore, it is not possible to visually estimate the percentage of REE mineralisation, and this will be determined by laboratory results reported in full once received, which in respect of the first batch of diamond drilling assays, is estimated to be around late October this year.

A replacement announcement as at today’s date has been made to the ASX (released at the same time as this announcement) (“Replacement Announcement”) which clarifies the above and also includes a summary of the visual drill core, refer to new table on page 9 of the Replacement Announcement, entitled “Table 2: Summary Geological Logs”.

This announcement has been authorised by the Board of DY6.
