December review

After the party comes the hangover. In the run-up to the US presidential election, share markets had largely positioned themselves for a Trump win, and they initially rallied further once the outcome of the election was certain. With Trump in the White House the case for being positive on US share markets, and by default on global share markets (noting the US now makes up 70% of the global share market index) is clear: a pro-business administration, tax cuts, and the promise of a deregulation wave. While that bullish case is straightforward, its Achilles heel is the risk that the market will not be able to ignore a rise in bond yields that could follow from much of Trump's agenda.

In December, markets had a glimpse of that risk, with the US Federal Reserve cutting interest rates by 0.25% as expected, but at the same time signalling that they only expected to cut rates by half a percentage point in 2025, down from the full percentage point they had recently forecast in September. This 'hawkish cut' sent stocks lower and the US dollar significantly higher. In US$ terms, global share markets fell by 2.7% over the month, while the US dollar rose by 5.0% against both the Australian dollar and Japanese Yen, and by 2.1% against the Euro. The large fall in the value of the Australian dollar over the month meant that global share market returns were positive in Australian dollar terms, despite global share markets falling over the month. In A$ terms, global shares markets rose 2.7% in December, while the local share market fell by 3.2%.

Turning to the GVF portfolio, there were four corporate actions during the month, the largest of which was a return of capital from ABRDN Property Income Trust (API). As we discussed in September's monthly report, GVF initiated a position in API at a c.40% discount to asset backing in the wake of a collapsed merger with another UK REIT. API's board had previously said it would recommend a managed wind down if the merger did not complete, and we felt this scenario offered a compelling return, even on conservative assumptions about asset values and timings. In September, API announced it had agreed the sale of all but one of its assets, representing c. 97% of the portfolio, at a c.8% discount to asset backing. This deal closed in late November, and in December API distributed c.87% of its revised NTA. Approximately 5% of this represented residual undistributed property income, which came in the form of a dividend, and the other 82% represented the proceeds of the portfolio sale, less a conservative buffer of cash which will be held back. API is actively working on the sale of its remaining asset and in due course will liquidate and return any remaining value to shareholders. GVF has so far received 118% of its investment back in the form of capital returns and dividends. Based on the market price of the remaining holding, in Sterling terms, GVF's investment in API has so far produced an annualised return of c.56%.

The GVF investment portfolio increased by 2.9% during December. The fund's discount capture strategy added 1.2% to performance, while foreign exchange

Company overview

GVF is a listed investment Company that provides shareholders with the opportunity to invest globally through a portfolio of securities purchased at a discount to their underlying asset value. By capturing this discount for its investors, the manager aims to provide an alternative source of market outperformance compared to more common stock selection strategies.

It is the Board's intention to pay regular dividends so long as the Company is in a position to do so.

Investment Manager

The portfolio management team is split between London and Sydney and has considerable experience in finding international assets trading at a discount to their intrinsic value and in identifying, or creating, catalysts to unlock this value.

Selected Holdings¹⁰

Holding	Summary
Amedeo Air Four Plus	London-listed investment company that owns twelve widebody aircraft on long term leases. A special situation that GVF first invested into in 2020, Amedeo continues to offer an attractive long-term risk reward proposition. The company pays a dividend yield of c.14% pa that is more than covered by contractual lease payments from Emirates.
Pantheon International	London-listed closed-end fund with a diversified portfolio of private equity investments, which trades at a deep discount to asset backing that we believe is unsustainable over the medium term. Following on from a highly accretive £200 million share buyback programme in FY2023/24, last year the company introduced a capital allocation policy that directs a portion of future net cash flows to buybacks, based on discount level.
Sherborne Investors Guernsey C	London-listed investment company managed by Sherborne Investors – an activist, turnaround firm led by Ed Bramson – which owns a significant stake in US-listed Navient Corp (NAVI). Despite being structured with the intention of pursuing a single turnaround investment and then returning capital to investors, the company’s shares currently trade at a discount of 20.5% to asset backing.
US Masters Residential Property Fund	Deeply discounted ASX-listed fund that owns a portfolio of US residential property in New York and New Jersey. The fund is now focused on realising assets and returning the proceeds to unitholders, while operating a very active buyback program.
